In many ways I'm glad you aren't dealing with the issues we're dealing with. I'm sorry you were so burdened. I am too. I love you. Talk to you later.*

“ HAPPY BIRTHDAY, EJ!!! One of the best days of my life - when you were born! Such a beautiful baby. And you continued to grow into a beautiful young man! So mild mannered and easy going. I miss you, grandson. I miss you very much. I decided today wouldn't be a sad day because you're gone. Instead, after 6 years of suffering losing you we're going to focus on the blessing you were while we had you in our lives! So today - WE CELEBRATE YOU!! I love you so much!

“ Hey son. Well we're into another year, 2025. Doesn't seem real. I was thinking yesterday of many events in my life. I find more that brings me tears of sadness rather than joy. I miss you so much. I cooked a pretty good meal the other day and after eating I was cleaning up the kitchen. I remembered how you always liked to wait until everyone had eaten to fix your plate as you cleaned up the kitchen. It took me awhile to realize that was your way of "cleaning up" the leftovers!! Lol. I actually was laughing out loud remembering that. You loved my cooking and you know I loved that!! I can hear you laughing now too! I love you so much, baby.

“ Hey son. It's been a while since I last wrote on your guestbook. A heck of a lot has been going on. But you know me, I've been doing my best to keep on top of everything. You've really been on my mind and in my heart. I guess you've kind of lingered since your birthday in July. Time does truly pass fast. It doesn't seem like it's been 5 years. It feels so recent, so fresh. I miss you so much. None of us know what it's like after death but I pray one thing is true. And that is that you're with your brothers and other family. That you all know one another and can embrace each other. It seems kind of crazy but so is life. Anyway, on that note, I hope I'll see you again one day. You don't have to share this message with your brothers, I'll send it to them too. 😊 Yep, your Gma hasn't changed. I love you much. With all my heart.

“ Hey, son. Your Grandma loves you and misses you so very very much. There's been a lot going on, especially lately. The good news is that your mom is getting better. I hope she continues to progress. I'm doing well as to be expected for a 75 year old. Well, I will write again later, and I'll do my best not to take so long. I love you, son.

“ Well it's been 5 years since your passing! Unbelievable. The 13th was a difficult day for your mom, and for me. Mine started off teary and solemn. Your mom's started the same, but stayed like that most of the day. Understandable. We all miss you so much! Time has passed so quickly but it still feels like yesterday. There will never be enough time to go by before I stop missing you and wishing you were here. I love you so much!!!

“ Hey sweetheart. Its been awhile but its because I've been taking care of your mom. She's been through a lot and is still not back to herself yet. But we are hopeful that it won't be much longer. You know me, I'm doing my best to do all I possibly can to help her. I'm doing okay, but I feel like my body is giving out. Fortunately my mind is still pretty sharp. It may be a little while before I write again because I am extremely busy and it takes a lot of energy to take care of your mom and all of her needs and still take care of me and all of mine.

I miss you SO much. I love you with all my heart. I think of you every single day. I don't know what's in the future or if there's an "ever-after", but if there is I pray I see you again one day. All my love to your brothers and both grandpas. I am so lonely for you all.

“ EJ, your Grandma is thinking of you today but as I said before, that's not unusual because I think of you every day. Today is different though...it's the day you left us. The three of you, Maal, Maine, and you, so young when you left, have all exacerbated the pain of loss that's in my heart. It's hard to push everything aside and keep going when my heart is so heavy. I hate that your lives were taken before you really got to live it. But now - it is what it is and nothing will or can change that. I don't want your "departure" dates to make every other day - including your birthdays - into thunderous or overcast days. We have to continue to struggle through the pain and sorrow so we can finish living our lives and honor yours. So today, I choose to remember those departure days for what they were, but I will never ever forget my memories of you or diminish the impact you had on my life. EJ, son, I am eternally grateful to have had you as my youngest grandson! I'll always love you, to my last breath and beyond. Grandma

“ EJ, I thought of you today, but that is nothing new. I thought about you yesterday, and days before that too. I think of you in silence, I often speak your name. All I have are memories, and your pictures in a frame. Your memory is a keepsake, from which I'll never part. God has you in His arms, I have you in my heart. With all my heart, Love Grandma

“ Hey EJ. Well, we got past Christmas and New Year's. Thank God. IT WAS VERY HARD with all four of you not being here. Time is moving on quickly. I can't even believe all of this, it's very devastating. Lately I've been emotionally, mentally and physically drained. My neck has started back hurting so I guess I'll have to go ahead and schedule that surgery I've been putting off. Your mom has really been struggling as well. We've had a lot to consume so in time we'll be okay. I love you and miss you very much.

“ Hey, sweetheart. Well, I'm pleased to say that Maine's services went very well. He looked magnificent! Your mom did a great job coordinating the colors and the suit. I took care of everything else and I did my best. We felt that Maine was directing us with what he wanted all along the way, so I'm sure he was pleased too!! Oh, pastor had a stroke the night before and did not make Maine's service. He's a little better now but still in the hospital. On the Monday after the service, Gigi died. Your mom was devastated, we both bawled at the animal hospital. Then, Tuesday your mom was sick and I rushed her to the hospital. She ended up having emergency surgery on Wednesday to remove kidney stones! We're going crazy here!! So today is a somewhat better day, at least I can rest a little. I have lots of business pending for both GP and Maine. I'm very tired. I don't know when or if things will ever settle down to "normal", whatever that is. Well, I guess that bring you up-do-date. I miss you so much. I love you, baby.

“ EJ, I'm sure you were there with your brother, Maal, to welcome your brother, Maine, into your arms. He left us Friday night...his heart couldn't take any more. He held out as long as he could and he didn't want to leave your mom alone, but he realized he was leaving her in good hands since Aunt Sheila and I will see to her. He made his 32nd birthday and renewed his license - two things he had hoped to accomplish. Now, like we did with you and Maal, we are mourning losing Maine. It's become unbearable with all of the losses. Having lost GP seven weeks ago, I'm super stressed. I miss you all and hope you're all together. Prayerfully, we'll all see each other again. I love you, EJ.

“ EJ, I miss you SO much. When I sit in the den I see your smiling face on the picture by the tv. When I walk down the hall I see your smiling face on the picture collage on the wall. When I close my eyes, I see your smiling face. When I dream, I see you and I hear your voice saying, "Awww, grandma", for everything I did for you. You were such a respectful and appreciative child. My heart is exceedingly heavy because you are not here. I think sometimes how it's possible you could willingly leave this life, when even in my old age, as much as I am often tormented by bad memories and tragic events, I still look to more years to come. Maybe it's because you didn't have a chance to appreciate life - not as much as you appreciated me. Life holds so much more than we can phantom but many people miss out. I try to find some joy in life, though happiness escapes me. Sometimes I find joy in knowing that someday the pain will end, but I think also, so will all the things I found joyful in life.

Anyway, it's behind me now and I feel a little better today. I have to say a lot has been going on especially with the pandemic and so many people sick and losing their lives. It's hit the family with Dee and Tonya both acquiring it, but Dee has fully recovered and Tonya is stable and doing well. Everyone is in prayer that this virus passes soon, especially before many more people die. There are daily deaths...makes you wonder what's really going on. Anyway, I miss you so much, son. “ Son, everything happens for a reason...there's so much turmoil in the world and in our family right now. People are wearing their feelings on their shoulders. Me too. I'm exceedingly stressed. So much so that I long to be with you. I can't tell you how much I miss you but I'm grateful that you're not here right now experiencing all this pain in the family. I really thought your demise would somehow bring us all closer since we're all suffering your loss. But instead, we transgress, we keep drowning deeper and deeper into a well of regrets, resentment, anger, a place of no return. You were my sunshine and now it's gone. Only cloudy days embrace me. No more light...I look at your pictures in your eyes I see the light - but in the real the light is dimmed, it's gone. I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry. I love you SO much, son. “ It was a good Christmas, in spite of you not being here with us. I couldn't write yesterday between visiting Maine in the hospital and visitors popping in, it was a busy but relaxing day. I didn't do all that cooking, just made a gumbo and rice, (two big pots so GP could take one to work) and sweets. You would have loved it all! Then I spent the rest of the day relaxing watching movies I rented from Redbox, while GP had to go to work. We didn't do all that shopping for presents for everybody (but missed shopping for you). Instead we adopted a family in need and bought just for JayQuan. I took a video of him opening his gifts...he was SO happy! It made me happy to see him so happy. I miss you, son. “ Just thinking of my loving grandson, today, tomorrow, and every day I have hereafter. I love you, EJ. I miss you. Your loving Grandma

“ My sweet EJ, it hurts to think of you...yet I can't stop myself. I miss you more than I can say or describe. It makes no sense to me that you are not here today. I just can't help the pain in my heart, mind and soul. I miss you so much. So many things remind me of you. I think I've pretended as long as I can that you are still at school. The fantasy is over and reality is setting in - hard and heavy. I love you so much!! Your Grandma

“ My sweet grandson, I miss you more than I can explain. The constant pain I feel I will no doubt take to my grave. I just wish I could have prevented your early departure. I love you so much. I see your smile in all your pictures and I search the depth of your eyes - trying to find an answer to the unanswered question - why? I can't find any peace when I search. I'm lost for what to do to ease the pain. Prayer? Doesn't help. Talking? Doesn't help. Crying? No, never helps. Stressing? Definitely not. What can I do? Why couldn't I have seen the pain in your eyes or the despair in your smile? I feel like I failed you. My heart is so heavy. I love you, son, so much. And I will never say that in the past tense.

“ My EJ, sometimes I hate coming on this site because it's a reminder that you are gone. My heart aches so much and my tears are a painful reminder that I won't see you any more. I love you SO much...I wish I could have prevented your leaving us. I wish I had known your pain, your struggle. I'm sure I could have helped, I'm sure I could have helped - there is NOTHING I would not have done to help you. - Grandma

“ My baby, my youngest grandson, whom I loved and love dearly. There was NOTHING under the sun that I would not give or do for you. And there is nothing NOW that I would not give or do to have you back. My heart is exceedingly heavy...my thoughts remain on you. Now I've got you to mourn as well as your brother. I keep thinking it's not fair. My family is so small. I'm in misery. - Grandma

“ EJ, I miss you so very much. I constantly see your smile. I am still trying to adjust but I know it's not a good thing that I find limited comfort in pretending you are still at school. Someday that comfort is going to leave me and I'll just be left with sorrow that's burrowed deep into my heart. Until then, I'll just say I love you!!

“ My heart just won't let me get past losing you. I miss you SO much. I look at your pictures and all of them have your signature smile. Everybody that knew you knew what a wonderful person you were. So respectful, caring and even tempered. I just can't believe I don't have you in my life anymore. I wish I understood the choice you made. I wish I could turn back time. You made my life so much brighter and there was nothing, absolutely nothing that could make me less proud or less loving of you. I have to leave this world not knowing why I had to lose you. I love you so much, EJ. I miss you so much. I just can't see what happened...

My heart will forever suffer from losing and missing you, my youngest grandson. I just can't get pass this. It will take considerable time for me to become steady again. My heart is broken into a million pieces. I just can't believe you're gone from me. I was so looking forward to what your future would be like. I just know you would have been phenomenal. I love you so much, EJ, I love you with all my heart.
