“ While we may weep for one that has lived a God-fearing life, because it is the humanly thing to do when we miss a loved one, we won't weep as one with no hope, for there will be rejoicing in our hearts for the day we will meet our loved one again. Fear God because he knows a life without God is no life at all. Gary was a God-fearing man who loved his family. May God comfort you all during this time and as days go by with memories of love and joy.
