“ My dearest Kelly Sue, I am in utter disbelief that you've left this part of life! Seems that it was only yesterday that we were joking, having a conversation with Nacho, trying to intimidate each other about a prospective Scrabble game. As I am in deep mourning, I am also so mindful of wasted moments, whether when we were geographically together, or in times via phone calls, etc. There were so many moments where my jealousy and suspicions allowed me to lose even more precious moments with you. I will forever regret that.

I thank you gracing my life, dear one. You flew into my life for what seemed only a brief moment. You were as a stellar comet just sailing in for a flash, leaving only the sparkling wake that your smile and the music of your laugh created. To me, you are stellar, ma'am.

We talked so many times about prospective futures, desires, problems, etc. But I, like the silly human animal that I am, seemed to think you would be here forever, dear one. One would think that I would have learned about the brevity of life by now. So, now, I continue sending you emails and text messages, praying desperately that somehow my loving messages might reach you in God's kingdom. You see, it's all I have now...until I might once more behold the velvet touch of your hands, the crystalline radiance of the Stardust within your root beer candy-colored eyes in His kingdom, dear one.

You've always made fun of me for my mushy saying, but it remains true:

For decades I have sought you; for all eternity I shall love you, Kelly Sue!

Rest well, dearest one. Feel always through the light years between us the rhythm you have created in my heart that will drum throughout all eternity, Tanti baci, carissima mia.

“ *Rhiannon and Jennifer,
I met Kelly playing Scrabble on Pogo and we became friends and adversaries for over a year or more. We shared the same birthday and we had many laughs, intimate moment, and she loved beating me at Scrabble. I was devastated when I saw the text from Jennifer and heard the news of Kelly's death. I had spoke to her just a few hours before and she mentioned going to see the movie. I will miss her as I know many people will. My thoughts and prayers will be with you.

“ To the entire family, it's hard to believe that Kelly has been taken away from us so soon. I just saw her two Saturdays ago and I had the chance to introduce to her my newest grandchild. She was so thrilled to see my grandchildren because she accepted them as hers. Jasma and Rhiannon played together everyday when they were children and Kelly was so happy to have Jasma as a second daughter. We went from first grade to high school graduation together and we never left New Waverly so therefore I would see Kelly daily and was so thrilled to do so. I just cannot say how deeply touched my life is now. Having lost my son only eights months ago has really been a journey of life changing events for me, which not only has made me stronger in my faith but has made me believe and know that Jesus has a place prepared for us when he decides to call us home. And I am happy in my soul knowing that both Travis and Kelly are there resting in his arms of everlasting peace and eternal salvation. I just want this family to know that trusting in the Lord will bring you the peace that surpasses all understanding, so daily give thanks to God for having Kelly the length of time that you did have her and not dwell on what's gone ahead of you, but dwell on that blessed day to come when we all will have a chance to gather in that blessed place called Heaven and we will all meet again never to part no more. Prayer is the answer that will help you through your grief. Cry but not without hope. Believe but not without an answer. Know that the answer is in Christ Jesus. I am only a phone call away so therefore if you all need me please fail not to call. I love all of you in the name of Jesus Christ my Lord and Savior.
