“ My mother was the best woman to ever walk this Earth. I am her only daughter. She had me at 18 years old, so we sort of grew up together. We were always very close, but never more than after I became a mother and gained a new appreciation for all that she was and all she sacrificed for me. She was beautiful, honest, intelligent, hard working, tough as nails, funny, a care giver, a great dancer and loved her family and friends immensely. She was also the BEST cook.

I don't know how I'll be able to live without her... without our daily texts... without hearing her voice or seeing her face again. A piece of me is forever gone. I hope that I can be half the mother to my son as she was to me and will spend the rest of my days trying to make her proud.

Thank you to everyone for your kind words and gifts. I know she is smiling down and would want us to remember all the many wonderful times we shared with her.
