“ I, too, have a Private First Class Airman son who is serving overseas in his first deployment. I feel your loss and your need for answers, and I hope the Air Force is eventually able to honestly tell you what happened to your son. He served with honor and you should be proud. Keep those thoughts uppermost in your minds.

Linda Musthaler - April 22, 2018 at 11:13 AM

It's taken awhile for me to get through this .but the only basically answer was he killed my son because he wanted to know what it felt like to kill another.

“ I did not know Bradley Hale but I did serve in the Army active duty from 2003-2009. I was also in the reserves from 2009- 2011 and then again from 2012-2016. I will say that even though we did not know each other, a loss in the service is felt by us all. I'm terribly sorry for your loss and I'dyou need anything left me know, I'm in Willis.
