“ Good morning to all my Facebook friends. That's how Daddy started his daily post. He was on everyday and very popular. He'd tell us what his plans were for the day, what he had for supper, he'd post pictures of my kids cleaning something he loved to see and tell us not to get too wasted for church, not to sit in someone else's pew and not to accept wooden nickels. Every post would end with the words "and remember I love y'all." His time here was too short and in the days ahead it's gonna only hurt more. The bigger the love the bigger the hurt. My Daddy was a mighty big man with an even bigger heart. Mine is breaking I wish I could have given him my heart. I would have if I could. The pain will get a little better with time but I will never be the same and neither will those who knew and loved him. Thank you all for making him feel loved, needed and special. Rickie McFadden was a very special man. What are we going to do without him?
