“ *Dick and Ann,
Every time I visit your lovely home, I see Art in his study and Wilma in the living room. Art was always excited about something on the computer and Wilma was always patient with us - regardless of what chaos we brought with us. What blessings both of them have been to us all these years! I will miss them but carry their memories with me and will try to honor them by reflecting their hospitality and love to those around us. I know our God has welcomed them home with "Well done good and faithful servants". May He comfort you and continue to do His work through you. Much love, Betty Hanlon*

“ I've known Art & Wilma for nearly 50 years through my treasured friendship with Dick. They were good people: kind, hospitable and industrious. Wilma, in particular, was a wonderful, engaged and supportive partner to the two over-achieving, creative and adventurous males in her life - husband Art and son Dick. She was a sound counselor and loving guide to her children, Sue and Dick. She was blessed and she was, in turn, a blessing to many others. I enjoyed our adult relationship as friends - I'll miss her. With blessings, Jerry Hanlon
